

JCI Range Today

5,880 – 5,820 (Support), 6,250 – 6,400 (Resistance)

Jakarta Composite Index formed a candlestick resembling a Doji, still hovering around the support area. This suggests that although selling pressure remains relatively high in the market, a bottoming pattern is starting to form. There's even potential for a trend reversal if market sentiment turns supportive. A green candle is likely to form today, especially with the RSI positive divergence consistently in play. Near-term target: MA10 around 6,250, followed by MA20 at 6,400. A move up to 6,450 would act as a short-term resistance, which would require stronger momentum to break through. ADVISE: SPECULATIVE BUY.
