Jakarta Composite Index

JCI appeared to struggle to stay in the positive zone after attempting to break the first Resistance at 8,150, which represents the two-layer Moving Averages of 10 and 20 days (intraday High capped at 8,151); and eventually had to surrender, closing in negative territory, down -24.52 pts / -0.30% at 8,092.63.

KIWOOM RESEARCH estimates that high volatility will continue to play throughout this week, with trading likely to move at a slower pace within a Sideways trend. The psychological Support at 8,000 (as well as MA50) remains the key determinant to signal a gradual position reduction for investors/traders. The final tolerance that would end this Sideways Channel pattern and turn it into a bearish trend is 7,900 — reduce positions further if this support wall collapses (on closing position).

ADVISE: WAIT & SEE; Sell more if the 8,000 Support is breached.
